Dear Parents, Carers and Staff

REBROKERAGE OF NORTHWOLD SCHOOL

Further to the Amaya Trust's announcement that they are seeking the transfer of Northwold Primary School to another multi-academy trust (a process known as rebrokerage), we wanted to share an information update with you. The information is based on conversations with officials from the part of the Department for Education that oversees academies in our area, the Office of the Regional Schools Commissioner for East of England and North East London (the RSC).

Why is this happening?

When the Amaya Trust was incorporated, although it started as a single school trust, it saw itself growing so it could benefit from the opportunities that would come from having multiple schools within the trust. However, as a single school trust, the trustees have found it difficult to recruit other colleagues with the correct mix of skills and time to allow for the growth of the trust. This is a situation that single school trusts can find themselves in (and this is why the government have now invited single academy trusts to consider whether they should join multi-academy trusts).

Although the Amaya Trust is not now in a position to grow itself, the benefits of being in a larger organisation remain. The benefits include maintaining high standards for children, recruiting teachers and professional development opportunities for staff. The only way of taking advantage of these benefits now is for Northwold to join a larger multi-academy trust. The trustees have passed a resolution to effect this and, ultimately, to wind up the Amaya Trust. Please note, although the Amaya Trust is being wound up, there is no suggestion that Northwold will be closed down. The school will continue under the governance of a different trust.

Timetable

This timetable is subject to change, though the RSC would like it to move as quickly as possible.

1. Currently, the RSC is supporting the Amaya Trust to identify potential new trustees. They are seeking people with appropriate experience who together will have the correct mix of skills. Hopefully the Amaya Trust will have a sufficient number of trustees with the required skills before the Christmas holidays.

2. We are not sure whether anyone from the school community would be considered for appointment as a trustee. If you are interested we would advise you to contact the trust via email (governor@northwold.amayatrust.com), attaching a CV and a letter of interest by Sunday (9 December) evening at the latest. Being a trustee is a time commitment and involves significant legal and financial responsibilities. More information is available on the National Governors Association website, www.nga.org.uk.

3. Once the full Amaya Trust board is in place, it will specify its preferred multi-academy trust (MAT) for Northwold to join.

1. The headteacher board (an independent body which is responsible for advising and challenging the Regional Schools Commissioner) will review the proposed rebrokerage. The Regional Schools Commissioner will consult with the headteacher board and then will make a decision as to whether the rebrokerage should proceed. The current thinking is that the rebrokerage of Northwold is likely to go before the headteacher board in February or March 2019.

5. The MAT then starts doing due diligence on Northwold to check finances, policies, buildings, academic standards, etc. They can also start doing the due diligence before the headteacher board if Amaya Trust consents to it.

6. The rest of the process depends on the due diligence. Once the due diligence is completed to the satisfaction of the MAT, the rebrokerage will be agreed and the legal process of transferring Northwold to the new trust will begin. The employer for staff will change as part of the legal process and will become the new MAT. The law provides certain protections to them (under the TUPE regulations).

7. If the process goes smoothly, Northwold could be part of the new MAT by June 2019.

Which trusts are being considered?

The RSC are currently considering which MAT to recommend for Northwold. The Lime Trust is one of the options and we understand it is currently the RSC's preferred option. We don't currently know whether other options are being considered.

How can the community help?

1. The Regional Schools Commissioner holds the final decision on which MAT Northwold will join. RSC officials say the best way parents and staff can influence the decision is to talk to the Amaya Trust.

2. When the decision goes to the headteacher board, parents and staff can make representations to them in support or otherwise of the proposed MAT. We have requested more information about this process and will share it with you once we receive it.

Updates

At the moment, this is all the information we have. Please keep checking the newsletter as all further updates will be posted there. If you do not currently receive a link to the weekly school newsletter by text message, please go to the school office and make sure your number is on the text message list. We will share another update with you as soon as we have one.

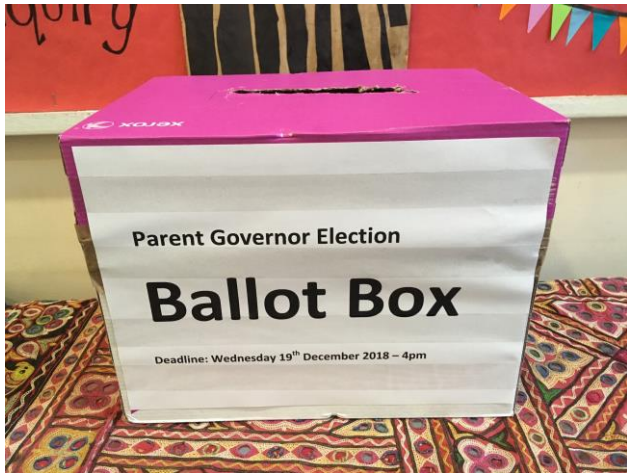

Thank you for all your support.

The tables below set out dates for 195 days. Pupils are to be released for a further 5 days for the purpose of teachers' staff development (INSET). These days can be taken as inset days or equivalent twilight sessions

Academies, free schools and voluntary-aided schools are able to set their own dates but have been asked to set the same or similar dates in the interest of parents who may have children at different schools.
